Media Statement re: Cuthbertson House in response to query from the Herald Sun

Background: On Wednesday 12 February 2020, a letter was sent to Cuthbertson House parents and guardians about some boys organising or participating in boxing bouts within the boarding house. The School has adopted an educative approach – Associate Professor Neil Orford, who is an Intensive Care Specialist and past parent, will address all Senior School boys about trauma related head and facial injuries.

Our approach is motivated by an unwavering commitment to child safety.

In a contemporary context, this type of behaviour will not be tolerated within any aspect of our school environment, where everyone can expect to feel and be safe.

We are utilising this opportunity to educate our students about responsibility and risk; to assist our learners to make informed choices that prioritise safety.
